START-UP VALUATION:A WAY TO MEASURE COMPANY'S POTENTIAL

उत्साहो बलवानार्य नास्त्युत्साहात्परं बलम्। सोत्साहस्य च लोकेषु न किंचिदपि दुर्लभम्॥

Enthusiasm is the power of noblemen. Nothing is as powerful as enthusiasm. Nothing is difficult in this world for an enthusiastic person. Entrepreneurs of Startups may experience normal as well as unreasonable fears, which is definitely different than others for human beings. Generally, all those fears are the factors holding their development back. One of the major factors they are worried about is the valuation of their start-up. Start-up valuation is very crucial as the quantum of funding that they may get depends on their valuation. The valuation of a start-up is altogether a different story as compared to the valuation of a corporate. Start-up valuation is intrinsically different from valuing established companies. Because of the high level of risk and often little or no revenues. So, the factors which are considered for the valuation of a Start-up are different from the factors considered for the valuation of a corporate.

One of the major factors is whether the product or service is just an idea or Currently under development, backed by solid market research and a business plan. The valuation is different if a working prototype is being tested by potential customers or is it generating revenues. The second important factor is what industry the start-up belongs to. Whether it is retail, food, entertainment, or to the government.

The main aspects of start-up valuation are as follows: -

- The soundness of the business model
- Available prototype
- Abilities of the founding or management team
- Strategic Relationships in the market
- Existing customers or first sales

(Adapted from Berkus Method of Business Valuation)

So, to sum up, it can be said that if everything works out well for the start-up and the investor, the company will achieve sustainable funding and growth.

DO ENTREPRENEURS PLAY AN IMPORTANT ROLE IN DEVELOPING THE ECONOMIES OF NATIONS?

Entrepreneurs are significant for various reasons, from elevating social change to driving development. Entrepreneurs are every now and again considered as public resources to be developed, spurred, and compensated to the best conceivable degree. Development is the Key to Success!

To comprehend the job and the significance of development, one should consider how Europe got in front of China and India through the "incredible dissimilarity" in the hour of the First Industrial Revolution in the late eighteenth and nineteenth hundred years. Prior to this, Asia was the prevailing monetary part on the planet. Anyway, with the appearance of the First Industrial Revolution, European economies took off incredibly. The explanation behind this was the enterprising soul and the creative utilization of innovation in the Continent which was answerable for its forceful development and ensuing strength which proceeds right up 'till today. Henceforth, this viewpoint which underscores the significance of advancement is the greatest commitment that Entrepreneurs make in the improvement of countries. In fact, the first Industrial Revolution is a demonstration of the individual's difficult work, aggregate development, and public renaissance which was all because of the amazing boldness and activity shown by the Entrepreneurs.

Entrepreneurs Spur Economic Growth.

New items and administrations made by business people can create a falling impact, where they invigorate related organizations or areas that need to help the new pursuit, advancing financial turn of events. For instance, a couple of data innovation organizations made up the IT business in India during the 1990s. The business immediately extended and numerous different areas profited from it. Organizations in related enterprises, for example, call focus activities, network support organizations, and equipment suppliers prospered. Instruction and preparing foundations sustained another class of IT employees who were offered better, lucrative jobs.

GHOST KITCHEN: CAN YOU EAT IN DARK?

If there is one element that perfectly represents humans it is food, just like humans, it has significantly evolved from raw vegetables and meat of the Stone Age to processed food of our current times. Just like food, how food reaches us has evolved from hunting to home delivery to the customers.

This food delivery field is also evolving. It has evolved in the past from restaurants delivering food to nearby areas to big fast-food chains delivering food to food delivery apps in recent times. A new business model has come in this field and it is known by various names like ghost kitchen, dark kitchen, virtual kitchen, and cloud kitchen.

A ghost kitchen or Dark kitchen is nothing but a type of restaurant. In these restaurants unlike traditional restaurants consumers cannot sit to eat food; it only delivers food to consumers. Customers can order food from these restaurants through websites or apps primarily. These types of restaurants usually have a tie-up with food delivery companies to deliver their products.

The online food market was approximately $91 billion globally in 2018 and expected to reach $164 by 2024. With this huge rise in online food services, we can expect a rise in the ghost kitchen industry too.

Generally, 2 types of entrepreneurs who open ghost kitchens, first are entrepreneurs who already own another restaurant, then opening a ghost kitchen presents a good opportunity to expand because as it involves less capital. The second are entrepreneurs whose primary business is ghost kitchen. They open a ghost kitchen as it requires low cost compared to opening a physical restaurant.

There are many advantages to the ghost kitchen model. These kitchens can experiment with their food more often. Food delivery services collect data from the consumers and according to that data, ghost kitchens can modify their menu. Another advantage is low investment and operating costs compared to the traditional restaurant setting. Low fixed cost because of low rent. Variable cost is also less because of less number of employees required than traditional restaurants. The third advantage of the dark kitchen is restaurant owners can expand into areas that are away from their traditional area like another corner of the city. Normally opening another branch of your restaurant is difficult but opening a ghost kitchen in a new branch will provide a good opportunity to expand their business. As COVID - 19 made going outside difficult and traditional restaurants are struggling, ghost kitchens have a good opportunity in the future. The only question is are you ready?

WANT TO BE A MILLIONAIRE AT A VERY YOUNG AGE?

Save to invest, don't save to save

The only reason many |to avoid wasting" to save lots of lots of money is to require an edge. Put your saved money into secured, (untouchable) accounts. Never use these accounts for love or money, not even an emergency. This will force you to still follow the first step (increase income). The key to consistently setting aside money is to form it automatically. That way, you'll never even see the cash you're contributing and you will learn to measure without it.

Change your mindset about money

Getting rich begins with the way you think that and what you think about making money," At the top of the day, "The secret has always been the same: thinking,". While the masses believe becoming wealthy is out of their control, rich people know that creating money is basically an indoor job."

Develop multiple streams of income

One way to earn more is to increase your streams of income. An author's five-year study of self-made millionaires he found that many of them develop multiple streams of income: 64% had three streams, 46% had four streams, and 30% had five or more streams. These additional streams include real-estate rentals, stock exchange investments, and part-ownership during a side business.

Invest in yourself

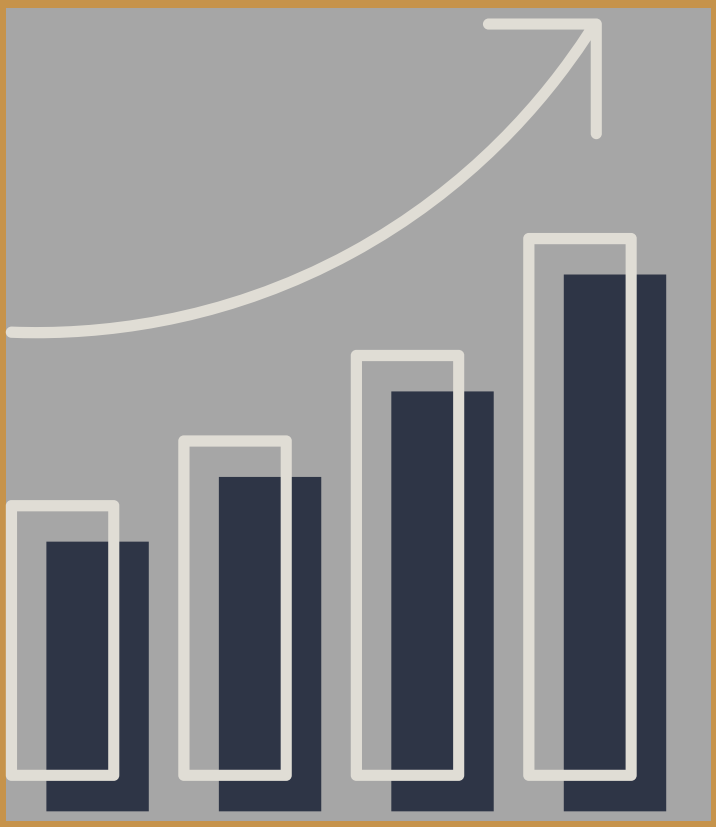
"Investing in yourself is one among the simplest return on investments you'll have. Read a minimum of half-hour each day, hear relevant podcasts while driving and hunt down mentors vigorously. You don't just need to be a master in your field, you'd wish to be a well-rounded genius capable of talking about any subject whether it's financial, political, or sports-related.

Treat money like a jealous lover

Millions wish for financial freedom, but only folks that make it a priority have millions. To get rich and stay rich you'll need to make it a priority. Money is like a jealous lover. Ignore it and it'll ignore you, or worse, it'll leave you for somebody who loves it more!

Set goals and visualize achieving them

If you would like to form extra money, you've got to possess a transparent goal then a selected plan for a way to realize that goal. Money won't just appear — you've got to figure at it. Rich people choose to commit to attaining wealth. It takes focus, courage, knowledge, and tons of effort, and it's possible if you've got precise goals and a transparent vision: The favorite reason most people don't get what they need is that they do not know what they need. A Rich person is totally clear that he needs wealth.



Focus on earning

In today's economic world you cannot save the way to millionaire status," the first step is to consider increasing your income in increments and repeating that. Suppose your income was $5,000 a month and nine years later it was $35,000 a month. Start following the cash and it'll force you to regulate revenue and see opportunities.

Avoid debt that doesn't increase your cash flow

Make it a rule that you simply never use debt that won't cause you money. Only borrow money for the things that you know could increase your income. Rich people use debt to leverage investments and grow income. Poor people use debt to shop for things that make rich people richer.

Being poor makes no sense

Eliminate any and everyone's ideas that being poor is somehow okay. Go to war with being broke! "Success is how you bounce on the bottom."

Don't show off — show up

Show Up! The world has never needed those that boast their bling's, successes, or their philanthropic endeavors with no other intention than to receive praise and a spotlight. What it's and can always need is for people to point it out when needed, when it's not popular or trendy to try to do so.
